manroland web systems at drupa 2016

From May 31 to June 10, 2016, manroland web systems welcomes customers, media representatives and other visitors at drupa 2016 in Dusseldorf. Thanks to a consequent market orientation, the world market leader in web offset printing can present the best solution for every printing room: no matter if new presses, tailor-made retrofits or digital workflow integration. All this will be shown at drupa 2016 in hall 14, booth C41.

manroland web systems today is the leading partner for all web offset users but also for the new developed field of digital printing. All solutions from manroland web systems aim at making customers more successful. This added value will be in the focus of the manroland web systems trade show at the world's largest exhibition for the printing industry.

At drupa 2016, visitors of manroland web systems will get to know more about the consequently developed, comprehensive and customer-oriented press and service portfolio. All shown innovations aim directly at cost savings and a more of productivity and flexibility. This also applies to press upgrades and press retrofits from the company's service sector as well as to the exposed drupa highlight, which is already revealed: a complete digital printing workflow with variable inline finishing with the FoldLine. Daily live productions at the booth will demonstrate job, format and pagination flexibility.

In a few days, the current manroland web systems newsletter will be published and the new website will be launched. More information about the trade show and all topics can be found there.
